No Fun for Fair.

Fair's friends will not enjoy the same easy time this year that they did when he last went into the Senatorial fight. He will not have much amusement in counting Republican converts. This time any of the Republican candidates would be able to defeat him. When he first ran he had support from powers which, under any other circumstances, would have helped elect a Republican Legislature. Now the circumstances are changed and he will be opposed by popular feeling and by capital greater than his own. Unquestionably a shrewd man, he does not exhibit his usual nous in engaging a second time in Nevada politics and he will not carry things before him with a high hand, as he did before.—Hawthorne Bulletin.

An Address from the Republican State Central Committee.

The following address has been sent to members of Republican County Committees throughout the State and to other prominent Republicans:

REPUBLICAN STATE CENTRAL COM.,
419 California street,
SAN FRANCISCO, June 25, 1886.

DEAR SIR: The Republican State Convention has been called to meet at Los Angeles, on Wednesday, August 25th, for the purpose of nominating a full State ticket. In view of the importance of the coming election, and its effect on the future of the Republican party, both National and State, it is respectfully suggested that the greatest care be exercised by the various counties in the selection of delegates to their respective nominating conventions; that the best representative men be sent to the conventions, both State and local, and the strongest and most available candidates nominated for State offices; but especially should great care be exercised in making legislative nominations. Much of our success this year will depend on the personnel of our ticket.

It is desirable, in fact it is of the utmost importance, that the State Convention shall be fully represented in person and not by proxy, and that as far as practicable the several counties urge the personal attendance of their delegates.

As the convention cannot proceed with its organization without the credentials of the delegates, it is to be hoped that the various County Committees use the utmost diligence in forwarding to the Secretary of this committee the names of their delegates to the State Convention.

The late date at which the convention meets necessitates being thoroughly organized for conducting the campaign before the meeting of the convention. And it is suggested that every county will, as early as practicable, have the County Central Committee formed and ready for work.

You will please forward, as soon as elected, the names of your new County Central Committee, with their postal address, designating the Chairman and Secretary of the same. By order of the committee.

A. P. WILLIAMS, Chairman.
JAMES R. FINLAYSON, Secretary.

Blaine to Sound the Tocsin.

At the New York Union League Club and other Republican headquarters there is expectation that Blaine is going to make a very important political speech in the course of a fortnight, which will supply his followers and admirers with salient points for the Fall election. According to these the speech will consist in the main of an arraignment of the Democratic party for its misdoings in Congress; its failure to redeem its pledges when Cleveland was nominated; its derangement of the commercial interests of the country by tariff tinkering, and an-American foreign policy; its refusal to encourage American shipping by voting down the subsidy clause of the Postoffice Appropriation bill; its betrayal of civil service reform; and, lastly, the President's alleged misuse of the veto power.

There are a number of persons who are willing to be appointed to the Austrian Mission, but the Secretary of State says that a Charge d'Affaires is attending to the diplomatic affairs of the United States quite satisfactorily at Vienna. The Kealey business will make the Austrian mission a vacant one for some time to come.

Albert Williams, of California, Chief of the Bureau of Mining Statistics in the Geological Survey, has resigned to take the presidency of a new college at Houghton, Michigan. The salary of his new position will be about three times as much as the Government has been paying him.

The Tuscarora Times-Review says it is rumored that W. M. Stewart and C. C. Stevenson have formed a political alliance, the terms of which are that they are to support each other respectively for U. S. Senator and Governor.

The President has approved the resolution extending the appropriations fifteen days.

President Cleveland has renominated Shields to be Chief Justice of Arizona.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

The Carson Index says:

Several newspaper articles have been printed recently which would lead to error in the public mind with regard to the proposed Constitutional amendment if left undisputed. As a matter of fact there are only three proposed amendments to be submitted to the voters at the coming election, instead of twenty-nine. The first is on page 163 of the statutes of 1885, and relates to the method of calling a Constitutional Convention, if desired, by a majority of the voters of the State. The other two follow immediately after, and provide for residence in the State one year before citizenship shall be acquired, and allowing the investment of school funds in the bonds of any of the States of the Union. At present the Constitution permits investment of school funds in only United States bonds or Nevada State bonds. The way in which the mistake occurred doubtless was from the fact that one of the newly proposed amendments provides that other amendments after its adoption shall be submitted to the people after having been adopted by one session of the Legislature. Under the present provisions of the Constitution it is necessary to have a proposed amendment indorsed by two successive sessions of the Legislature before it is put before the people.

Assistant Postmaster General Knott has issued a request for proposals for carrying the mails on several Pacific Coast routes.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

How the Day was Observed in Western Nevada.

Reno was nearly deserted Saturday, over 400 people having left on the morning train for Carson where they helped the "hub" folks celebrate our national holiday. Although a strong wind kept the dust flying all day, Carson carried out its programme, and made a fine display in their procession with the assistance of the fire and military companies from Virginia and Reno. The Virginia Orchestra picnic at Steamboat Springs was largely attended and the day passed in dancing, singing, etc. Reno itself let the day pass quietly by, only celebrating by firing a salute Sunday morning and a small display of fire-works in the evening under the supervision of Nick Hammersmith. Yesterday Virginia City took its turn in celebrating, and was helped out by a large crowd from Reno and Carson, including the Reno Guard. Truckee, although not in Nevada, is almost a part of this end of our State. This thriving little town turned out in force Sunday and Monday to Donner Lake, where all did honor to the day, by boating, picnicking, dancing and in every other way imaginable. The steamer "Comet" was kept busy every hour during the two days carrying people around the lake, making the trip to the head of the lake and back in about an hour. Below we give the oration delivered by Hon. R. H. Lindsay during the exercises at Carson Saturday afternoon:

To-day the chivalry and the beauty, the youth and manhood, of our common country assemble together to commemorate a nation's birth, and in harmony with this time-honored observance are we congregated around the altar of patriotism.

The centuries number nearly nineteen since the birth of a Redeemer for mankind was announced by the anthems of a heavenly host in the presence of the shepherds, and the story of his birth is as new to day in every Christian land, as when first the "glad tidings" rang forth on the breezes of the morn in that far-off Eastern land. At the time of his coming mankind believed that self-government was a heresy. "Honor the King," "Subjects obey your rulers"—were the ideas which governed. Paganism and every form of abject tyranny were the order of the day in all the lands of the earth. He was the representative of a great idea and around and about him grew up a civilization, the like of which, prior to that time, the world had no record of. Wherever the thoughts and doctrines taught by him found their way, men adopted them as being the most consonant with the "Divine right of man," until the rulers themselves, forced by the sheer weight of the heaven-taught sentiment of the governed, adopted his teachings.

On down the centuries until seventeen had passed away and the eighteenth lingered in the lap of time, the Christian world had been governed by a thought which embodied as its corner stone "the divine right of kings." An hundred years and ten ago in this fair land, on this great continent, another and no less divine redeemer of mankind had her birth. The angel dead of seven long years of bloody war sang loud hosannas at her birth. The world proclaimed her right to live, and kings alone denied the boon.

The cannon's roar, the clash of arms, the charger's neigh, and the shout of victory ushered in her birth. Her name, hear it ye nations; treasure it ye people of the earth; preserve it, oh, ye Americans—Liberty; precious Goddess of the people! As this day dawned, an Empire at the east turned to the sun and woke a strain sublime to thee, and with the hours progressing that mighty pean comes, till its echoes are heard over a thousand leagues, and in full accord sixty million hearts are stirred to swell the deep acclaim!

Around and about Thee has grown the civilization of the West, having for its corner-stone, "a government of the people." Its principles are eclectic, its basis is Christianity, its bulwarks are free thought, free speech and free schools. This civilization of the West is being wafted across the troubled waters of the Atlantic until to-day we find the idea upon which our Government is founded marching to the front in that proud empire on whose possessions the sun never sets. There be those living within the hearing of my voice who will see this new civilization dominant in Great Britain, the center of thought and learning on the European Continent, and may we not indulge the Eutopian prophecy that from her seats of learning and her ports of commerce will go forth such an influence for good that all the civilized nations of the Old World, while preserving their nationality, will compose a vast "Government by the people, for the people."

This liberty is the fruit of association—the united effort of a great people combined to accomplish a mighty end. If men to-day are freer than they once were, why is this so? Not alone by our brave hero's toil, or trials, or triumphs have our liberties been won. Poets sang to win this; artists painted to win this; historians wrote to win this; martyr patriots fought and bled to win this. Washington, the soldier, and Payne, the author, Grant, the soldier, and Lincoln, the statesman, yielded their sweat of brain and heart to water the immortal seeds of the tree of liberty, beneath whose ample shadows we find sanctuary to-day, and in our own day and generation these liberties are being preserved from the assaults of aggregated wealth and capital by the association and combination of labor and trades unions made up of the bone, brains, muscle and sinew of the land, and so long as an intelligence born of our common school system, and a faith, the product of our liberty, directs these associations in their deliberations and their acts no one need fear but out of them shall spring a purer and a better patriotism and a greater love for home and country.

Fellow citizens, appalling as the statement may be, and paradoxical as it may seem, there are those among us who abuse the gift of liberty—not "native and to the manor born," but among those to whom a shelter from their native land has been extended by the liberal hand of the Government, have come a few imbued with a spirit of turbulence and communism, whose threats of violence and disorder serve as a menace to the peace of our large cities. The sophistical vaporings of such as fail to distinguish between liberty and license find no echo where the sturdy pioneer carves out new empires, nor where the stalwart and sober sons of toil bury a carpet of flowers that a wealth of grain may follow to foster contentment, peace and plenty in our land. Thank Heaven the disease with which these "parasites on the body politic" are afflicted is not beyond the reach of that surgery to which an evil threatening the general peace will speedily succumb. And I take no small degree of personal pride in being able to state that there be those among us not "native nor to the manor born" either who have shown themselves willing in defense of liberty and right and at the call of duty to sacrifice even their lives on the altar of that country which bestows alike on those of her soil, the heavenly blessings of Liberty.

But friends; while we seem to have thus far found prompt and adequate remedies for those disorders which have in great measure already exhausted their violence on other continents, we have developed a disease peculiar to ourselves and which promises to display that virulence and persistence common to all maladies when they first make their appearance among mankind. In the very midst of the most enlightened country of the most enlightened era the world has ever known, in the full glare of the electric light of the newspaper, sheltering itself under the sacred name of Religion; ay! proclaiming its doctrines through the very trumpet of Liberty herself, grows and festers that foul thing called mormonism. A thing as much more repulsive than its prototype of Oriental lands, as poverty and squalor and publicity and all the anomalous conditions of western civilization can make it. This strange disease exhibits many of the symptoms of a moral cancer, and we must beware, lest like its physical counterpart, we find that even the knife prove powerless if we delay too long. Doubt it not, retribution follows a nation's sin as surely as that of the individual, and the time may come when our children must pour out their blood to atone for their fathers' sin, as within the sound of my voice, has already once been done for the righting of a long-suffered wrong. In that awful day of reckoning, neither of the great political parties will have the right to point its accusing finger at the other and cry "thou art the man!" for both will be equally guilty.

To-day, on this 110th anniversary of our national existence, the Sun, as he has driven his fiery couriers through an hundred degrees of latitude, has beheld an Empire, in every attribute of strength and grandeur, unparalleled in the world's history. He has heard one continuous pean of joy and gratitude ascending on high from the voices and hearts of sixty millions of people. He has beheld an undivided country, stretching over an hundred degrees of latitude, whose inland and independent commerce extends over a net-work of iron paths and waterways, greater in extent than is enjoyed by any two of the older nations of the earth. He has beheld the unbonded products of our fields and factories increasing as the years roll down, until from very surfeit the markets of the world cry "stop!" He has beheld the oceans with their twenty-two thousand miles of coast, serving as bonds of peace and union, and not as paths of war between us and the nations of the earth. He has seen our mountains whose surface sustains unnumbered flocks and herds, and whose mines send forth largess to feed the avarice of the world; our valleys stretching from the Arctic to the Gulf, teeming with the fruits of every clime. He has looked upon our institutions of learning lifting the people to the light of a nobler manhood; our church-spires pointing upward from every village; and his beneficent radiance falls like a benediction upon us as he bids us bow our heads and join in a worshipful, a holy and a happy prayer of thanks and gratitude to the Great Giver of all good that favors, the like of which before have only been read of in story are so accorded to us.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world.
